TYPHOON PASSES

HONG KONG SWEEP BY STRONG GALE

Typhoon At Gap Rock
This Morning.

SQUALLY WEATHER WITH RAIN
FOR TO-DAY.

Although experiencing a severe "blow," the Colony last night escaped the typhoon. According to latest reports, the typhoon was expected to pass south of Hong Kong at 3 a.m. this morning, causing winds of high velocity and squalls to be experienced here.

The second threat of the season, the present typhoon is far more severe than the one which passed within a few miles of the Colony on the evening of June 30.

Throughout yesterday afternoon the breeze freshened, accompanied by rain squalls, until by 5 p.m. the ferries were finding considerable difficulty in berthing, and in some cases running minutes behind schedule.

Great activity reigned on the waterfront throughout the day, gangs of coolies rushing, last-minute discharges of cargo from junks to enable the craft to make for the typhoon shelters.

Few launches were to be seen during the afternoon, and many swimming parties were cancelled. The week-end sports programme, with the exception of several lawn bowls league games, was also cancelled.

PASSES GAP ROCK THIS MORNING

The typhoon which threatened to strike Hong Kong last night, changed its direction at about 6 p.m., from West-North-West to East-North-East and at the time of going to press was expected to pass to the South of Gap Rock in the early hours of this morning. Gap Rock is situated at about 50 miles to the South of Hong Kong.

A statement was issued to the Sunday Herald by the Royal Observatory last night, to the effect that at 9 p.m. at Gap Rock, the Barometer read 29.44. Wind direction, East-North-East at 8 Beaufort (about 15 miles an hour).

The pressure continues to be highest over the Pacific to the South-East of Japan.

The weather forecast issued at 5.17 p.m. yesterday read, Hong Kong, Neighbourhood and Hainan Straits:—

North-East winds, fresh to strong gale; cloudy, squally, rain.

PROGRESS OF GALE

The No. 1 Typhoon Signal was hoisted at 11.20 p.m. on Friday, and yesterday morning's report from the Royal Observatory indicated that the typhoon was 250 miles E.S.E. of Hong Kong at 6 a.m., and heading for the Colony. It was stated that the coast near Hong Kong would be definitely threatened by cyclonic gales during the 24 hours from 10 a.m.

At 11.20 a.m. yesterday, No. 7 Typhoon Signal was hoisted, indicating that a gale was expected from the north east. This signal remained hoisted throughout the day.

Yesterday evening's weather report from the Royal Observatory gave the position of the typhoon at 5 p.m. as situated about 120 miles south-east of Hong Kong, moving W.N.W. The report added that the typhoon would probably pass to the south of Gap Rock early this morning.

CHINA'S NEW POLICY OUTLINED

PEACE, AND NATIONAL SOLIDARITY

AMBITIOUS PROGRAMME OF CHIANG KAI-SHEK AND WANG CHING-WEI

NANKING, YESTERDAY.

CHINA'S INTERNAL DIPLOMATIC ISSUES ARE DEALT WITH IN A JOINT TELEGRAM ISSUED BY MARSHAL CHIANG KAI-SHEK AND THE PRESIDENT OF THE EXECUTIVE YUAN, MR. WANG CHING-WEI, FROM KULING, APPEALING THE INTENTION TO RESORT TO FORCE FOR THE SOLUTION OF POLITICAL ISSUES, AND FINALLY OUTLINING THE FOUR ESSENTIAL CONDITIONS FOR THE SETTLEMENT OF THE CHARIAR PROBLEM.

The telegram begins by emphasising the necessity to enhance the productive power of the Chinese people in order to avert a breakdown in rural economy, and to bring industry to a more advanced stage.

Referring to the rampancy of banditry and Communism, the telegram declares that these twin evils have not only deprived the Chinese people of peaceful living, but have also affected all the Government's plans, including the national defence schemes.

The Government are therefore making every effort to terminate the bandit menace within the shortest possible period, and meanwhile, they are devoting serious attention to the improvement of the administrative system and the reinforcement of military discipline with a view to safeguarding the lives and property of the people.

The proceeds of the American wheat and cotton loan are to be employed for constructive purposes, and on no occasion are they to be diverted to military expenses.

Referring to foreign relations, the telegram states that the Government will adhere strictly to its off-repeated declarations that it will not sign any agreement ceding territories or recognising the fruits of aggression.

If it is called upon to depart from this stand, the Government will be prepared to make whatever sacrifice is necessary.

PEACE ESSENTIAL

Continuing the telegram states that China desires international sympathy and technical co-operation, but that she does not believe in entangling alliances tending to disturb peace.

"We are firmly convinced that internal peace and international security and essential to building up our country, and we shall strive our utmost to realise these prerequisites," it states.

The telegram then appeals for national unity in thought and action, and significantly states, "We not only refuse to talk about resorting to force to settle internal questions but are pained at hearing such talk."

It cites the imbroglio in Chahar as an indication of the Government's attitude, and gives the following four conditions for settlement of the problem.

CHARHAR SETTLEMENT CONDITIONS

Firstly, General Feng Yu-hsiang must not create military posts and titles leading to the separation of Chahar from China.

Secondly, he must not interfere with the Government's plans for the defence of the border of the province.

Thirdly, he must not recklessly incorporate bandits and irregulars in order to swell the number of his own followers, thereby jeopardising peace and order in Chahar.

Fourthly, he must not make use of Communist leaders, thus fostering the Red menace in North China.—Reuter's Pacific Service.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK PLANS

180 New Regiments To

ARMS FROM ABROAD.

Shanghai, Yesterday.

It was learned to-day from authoritative sources that General Chiang Kai-shek, chairman of the Nanking Military Commission, will put off immediate military measures in dealing with General Feng Yu-hsiang and those factions opposing his Nanking administration.

Meanwhile, General Chiang will push on his scheme to train 180 regiments of new soldiers and await the arrival of new armaments from foreign countries.

The last shipment of armaments will arrive at Nanking in October, when the new regiments will also be ready to take the field. "By then General Chiang will be in a position to put down any opposition against him easily and swiftly,"—Central Press.

FENG STILL TALKS BOLDLY.

"Will Die For Cause
If Necessary."

Kalgan, Yesterday.

Responding to the numerous congratulatory telegrams from Canton and elsewhere, General Feng Yu-hsiang to-day dispatched identically worded replies expressing his sentiments on the northern campaign.

He said that as national humiliation is aggravated day after day, he must fight in order to ward off such disgrace. Should he be unsuccessful in fighting the enemy, he has no alternative but to sacrifice his life to discharge his duty as a soldier and a Chinese citizen, he states.—Central Press.

REVIVAL OF HOPES

HUGHES AND PERRY BEATEN DECISIVELY

Possibility Of Borotra
Playing To-day.

BRITAIN SHOULD WIN.

Anteuil, Yesterday.

Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon have given France a fighting chance in the Challenge Round of the Davis Cup. To-day, before a crowded gallery they beat Fred Perry and Pat Hughes by 6-3, 8-6, 6-2 to make the scores 2 to 1 in favour of Britain.—Reuter.

To-day Austin, who looked ill after his match against Merin on Friday, will meet Cochet, whom he has never yet beaten, and Perry will probably meet Jean Borotra, in place of Merin, now that France are in a position to fight back.

If Austin is able to reproduce the form he displayed when he eclipsed Vines he should find little difficulty in defeating his veteran opponent. Should he lose, however, Perry is expected to win the trophy for the first time since 1912, regardless of whom he will play.

Hughes partnered C. H. Kingsley in the vital doubles match against France in 1931, and as the result of their defeat Britain lost by the odd match.

Britain, who lost to France in the Challenge Round in 1931, by 3 matches to 2 entered the Challenge Round this year as the result of the following victories:

Beat Spain 4 to 1
Beat Finland 6 to 1
Beat Italy 4 to 1
Beat Czechoslovakia 5 to 0
Beat Australia 3 to 2
Beat America 4 to 1

Anteuil, Yesterday.

Fred Perry's triumph over Henri Cochet in five sets yesterday has almost assured Britain of winning the Davis Cup for the first time since 1912.

Britain, leading by 2 matches to 0, has now to win only one of the three remaining matches to break the French sequence of six triumphs.

A crowd of 13,000, including the French President, M. Albert Lobrun, and Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang, witnessed the two British triumphs under sweltering hot weather conditions.

Austin, though winning his match in straight sets, looked ill and most distressed at the finish. He showed signs of tiring in the second set when Merin levelled at 4-all after being 4-0 down.

Austin, however, took the next eight games for the set and match.

The scores were:

F. J. Perry (Britain) beat H. Cochet 8-10, 6-4, 8-6, 3-6, 6-1.

H. W. Austin (Britain) beat A. Merin 6-3, 6-4, 6-0.

Perry's stamina and brilliant net work spelled the downfall of Cochet. The French ace, after a set all, held set point in the third set at 5-3, but dropped the set at 8-6 as the result of magnificent net-work by Perry. Throwing all his reserves into the fourth set Cochet played superbly to win at 6-3, but the effort proved too much for him, and Perry won the fifth set and match at 6-1 after a contest which went to 58 games.

Mid-Season Summer Styles

Paris Couturiers Speak
Their Mind.

BELFORM SHOULDER STYLES

AS the mid-season advances more collections endorse unanimity in waistlines and a diversity of shoulder treatments.

Patou approves high and wide stiffened wing effects on daytime coats and dresses, and huge leg-o-mutton sleeves for dressy wear.

Chanel uses both the narrow shouldered bell silhouette, with close-collared capelets, and arm holes edged with wide ruffles.

Malibacher sponsors sloping shoulders in numerous models, as well as some wide ones.

Brugere's high-collared and narrow-shouldered seven-eighths coats that flare endorse the bell form.

A "Grecian Line" For Women

Midnight Display Of Fashions.

FROCKS IN FOUR SECTIONS

EVERY woman is to look like a Grecian statue this autumn. The fashion creators are now busy designing modes that will make women appear tall, graceful, and statuesque.

The secrets of this sculptured look were revealed recently by the latest young dress designer to join London's growing fashion centre—Grosvenor-street, Mr. Mark Luker.

"The line for autumn will be based on modified Grecian and Empire lines," states Luker. "The effect of height will be given to women largely by means of long, narrow panels cut into the front and back of gowns and coats."

"Other frocks will be made in four sections, joined by seams down the front, back and sides. The seams, like the panels, will make figures look tall and slender."

The autumn frocks are flat in front, with a little fullness at the back, giving freedom to the figure. The present modes, on the contrary, fit the figure like a sheath and then below the hips break into extreme fullness all the way round.

The new flat skirt is introduced in one graceful Grecian gown in a diagonal grey fabric, with Grecian cowl draperies at the neck and under the arms.

Dressmakers will cease to borrow ugly and exaggerated modes from the Victorian and Edwardian periods. The nipped-in hip-line, with its "tight and ugly" look, is going. So is the unnatural fullness at the end of clinging gowns. So are exaggerated sleeves, such as the immense puff.

The new "sectional" frocks will be among the autumn sensations launched by this designer at a fashion parade this month, for which the honour of midnight has been chosen.

"Midnight is the only time that women are free, and has become the most fashionable hour for showing modes," he explained. "During the season the show-rooms are crowded all the day, while in the early part of the evening women have dinner parties and theatre engagements."

One of the new panelled evening frocks is in a creamy-pink shade, worn with a long tailored coat of "conquer brown," so named because of its chestnut hue.

Another sectional frock has been cut out on the lines of Gothic arches. This is in pastel shades for summer wear, with a belt composed of dozens of pieces of piping, each in one of the colours of the gown, and ending in a huge mop-head of the various shades.

Women will once again, after nearly twenty years, lift up their trains in the ballroom, and slip a finger into a loop in order to keep them off the floor while dancing. This is one of the few Edwardian modes that will survive this autumn.

Bows Replace Scarves

LARGE bows tied round the neck and pulled out under the chin are taking the place of scarves. A plaid taffeta bow looks smart with a plain navy coat with no collar.

New Sailor Styles

ONE new sailor hat is white straw, embroidered in patches with yellow wool stitches. Another is made of white pique, with touches of navy and a blue anchor embroidered on the turned-up brim in front.

THE LIVING GERM

A land "flowing with milk and honey" was the ideal "promised land" of pastoral tribes of old, and such a land will still remain the ideal if due prominence is given to the correct nutrition of its inhabitants.

This aptly describes New Zealand, the Empire's Dairy-land where modern scientific investigation has but confirmed the knowledge gained through the ages, and, at the present day its milk product is established more firmly than ever before in its position as the most valuable food, and one that cannot be placed by any other. A well known medical scientist and investigator in nutrition said "If the true nutritive value of Snowflake Milk was fully realised it would be more appreciated, and much more freely used". Science has proved the presence in certain foods of essential factors which are indispensable to growth, and to health. These are called vitamins, and although, even as yet not a great deal is known of them, some food experiments have shown that there are at least four kinds, and all these are present in Snowflake Milk.

Only cows who live an out-of-door life in natural surroundings exposed to the rays of the sun, and fed upon a natural diet of fresh green herbage could produce a milk product well supplied with vitamins A, B, C, and D.

Under these conditions, in a sunny climate, cows milk from which the Snowflake brand is produced contain pure nutriment in amount sufficient for the needs of the growing human infants, as well as for the adult. It is only in New Zealand where conditions abound, and in the mountainous regions where the soil is not used for any other purpose, that cows feed on their natural food in their natural environment.

The milk of the stall fed cow is deficient in the necessary vitamins, and especially the very important anti-scorbutic vitamin C, as this is only present in fresh plant tissue like the natural juicy pastures of New Zealand, and lacking in the milk when the diet is "dry".

Then the milk of stall fed cows is altogether deprived of the anti-rickets vitamin D. This is the most important vitamin of all for the young and growing child, and for the adult. It is only present in milk when the cow is itself exposed to the direct radiation of the sun like the Jersey herds in New Zealand which produce Snowflake.

Without an adequate supply of vitamins in the diet, deficiency diseases will result, vitamins are essential factors for growth and development, and the necessary amount will be used if Snowflake Full Cream Evaporated Milk is given a large place among the foods.

Snowflake is the brand of Milk used exclusively at many Child Welfare Centres in the world. It is obtainable at all leading stores. Sole Agents: New Zealand China Trading Company.

Colony's Brewery To Open On Aug. 16

Hygienic Conditions And Expert Brewers

The drive to Castle Peak has always been a favourite with Hong Kong people and it is now more interesting on account of the new plant of the Hong Kong Brewery and Distillers, Ltd.

The Brewery situated at Shum Tseng, is a finely designed mass of buildings of ferro-concrete, and is not, as are so many factories, a blot on the landscape. It will be more attractive, however, when the reclamation on which it is built is finally tidied up and planted with grass, flowers, and trees.

Process of Brewing.

The first process in the brewing of the beer takes place in the brew house. The malt, which has been ground in the top storey, comes down a chute into the mash tun where it is mixed with tepid water. A third of the mash is drawn off and passed into the copper where it is steam heated to a temperature of 75 degs. Cent. and then pumped back again to the mash tun. The process is called saccharification.

It is then filtered through the bottom of the tun and runs down in four pipes to a sort of wash basin served by taps. The brewer runs off a certain amount from each tap to see if it is quite clear and, if satisfied, the mash is pumped once more into copper. This time the hops are added and the two together are boiled for two hours.

The next step is straining which takes place on the ground floor. The clear liquid is then pumped up to the fourth floor and goes into the wort cooler. The liquid, beer in the raw so to speak, has been called "mash" so far, now that it has been strained free from grain and hop leaves it is called "wort."

The addition of the yeast is the next step. The wort passes to the fermenting cellar on the ground floor where it is received into big vats and the yeast added. The fermenting wort stays here for 10 days before passing to the maturing room where it has to spend two months in a temperature of 1 deg. cent. After this, a last known to the brewer as "beer," it is drawn off into beer receivers and is strained clear of the remaining yeast cells.

Modern Equipment.

The Brewery is equipped with an absolutely modern brewing plant built and installed by Messrs. Skodaworks Ltd. and is under the charge of a highly qualified engineer and two master brewers who hold the highest diplomas, in the case of the chief brewmaster, from the Vienna Brewery Academy, and in that of the assistant brewmaster, the First Special Brewery and Maltary Academy of Prague. Both of them have had many years' practical brewing experience.

The beer is untouched by hand during the whole process of brewing, and, Chinese employees of the Company must enter the Brewery by way of the wash house, where they must bath and change into garments provided by the Company before passing through to work.

The European Employees are housed in "Ormos Bungalow" about half a mile from the Brew-

The model plant of the Hong Kong Brewery and Distillers, Ltd., which will be opened on August 16, at Shum Tseng on the Castle Peak Road. The products of this new enterprise will shortly be on the market.

ery, while most of the Chinese work-people live in quarters, built by the Company, just across the road from the Brewery under the supervision of a matron. A well equipped distillery also a part of the Brewery buildings, serves both the employees of Company and the neighbouring villagers.

Suitable Water Found.

It is not, perhaps, generally known that a most important consideration for any prospective Brewery is the quality of the water that they propose to use. When the question of forming the present Company was first discussed a sample of the water, from a spring in the hills above Sam Tseng, was sent to the Institute for Brewing Science at Pilsen, Prague. A most gratifying report, issued on the authority of the Ministry of Public Health was received, coupled with the opinion, that there was no reason why beer, fully equal in quality to that brewed at Pilsen, should not be produced. The water comes to the Brewery in covered pipes from a filter bed in the hills just above.

The official opening of the Brewery, to which a large number of guests have been invited, takes place on August 16, when an opportunity will be given to all guests to sample H.B. Beer.

SAVAGE ATTACK WITH CHOPPER.

Market Elder Assaulted By Stall-Holder.

At the Central Police Court yesterday Mak Man Chan, a fishmonger at the Sai Ying Pun Market, was remanded in police custody until Monday on a charge of assaulting, Au Cheong, the Market Elder, with a chopper.

It was stated that the defendant was told by the Market Elder that he was occupying more space for his stall than he was allowed, whereupon he lost his temper and attacked Au Cheong with a chopper. He was seized and restrained by some fishmongers standing near.

Bonuses For Conscientious Players In Aussie Rugby League Tour

London, July 29.

MEMBERS of the Australian Rugby League team who left for England on July 4 will receive payment on a different basis from that of previous trips. In addition to their allowance of $4 per week, payment will be on the basis of playing merit, attention to training, and conduct. Points will be allotted by the team managers at the end of every match, and when the tour is concluded, there will be a statistical chart, which will reveal what bonus each player is to receive.

Points will be given for the way players train on ship en route to England, the way they train during the intervals between matches; assistance rendered by players acting as masseurs and not participating in a match; allowance for being on the winning side, losing side, or neutral.

For drawn games; allowance to players who are ready to participate in fixtures, but are not displaying form sufficient to enable them to take part in the matches. The adoption of this new system, it is claimed, should tend to overcome many anomalies that have been obvious to managers during previous tours. Almost every travelling team develops its "tourists," yet, at the end of an arduous tour, those players who have borne the heat and burden of the games have received no more compensation than those who have failed to attend to their training. It is not always the player's fault that he finds himself unable to reproduce the form that warranted his selection, but due allowance will be made for this failure.

TOTES IN THE STATES

Strong Political Clique Against Them.

California, by a plebiscite, has declared for the legalisation of betting on racing. It is the twenty-first of the United States to legalise betting.

Many have previously referred to the tote that Mr. Charlie Munn, who introduced greyhound racing to England, is erecting in the U.S.A., where the introduction of the machine has proved very popular.

In California, however, difficulties confront him. For one thing, no race courses are operated in that State at present. For another, there is a strong political clique behind the bookmaking interests in California, and the clique would go all out to defeat any measure to introduce the Tote.

ANOTHER HOME WIN FOR POLICE

CIVIL SERVANTS BEAT THE RECREIO

JUNIOR CHAMPIONS AND ELECTRIC REGISTER WINS

THE threat of a typhoon and a heavy downpour yesterday afternoon did not deter lawn bowlers, and as a result six of the eight League matches down for decision were played.

The Bowling Green recorded the "double" by beating the Kowloon Docks and the Civil Service and now occupy first and second positions in the respective leagues. The Police beat Taikoo at the Valley to record their second home win in five years, and the Civil Servants beat the Recreio in the senior division.

In the junior league Craigengower, the holders, beat the K.C.C. to retain their position at the head of the table, and the Electric beat the Police at Ming Yuen.

The First Division match between the Kowloon Cricket Club and Craigengower, the League champions, at the K.C.C., was abandoned with the Valley Club leading by 2 shots, and the junior game between the Recreio and the Yacht Club at King's Park was abandoned after seven ends on each rink. Both these matches will be continued from where they were left off on Wednesday afternoon, commencing at 5.15 p.m.

THE Civil Service owed their 12 shots win over the Recreio to R. P. Phillips' rink, who beat R. F. Luz's four by 16 shots. Consistent bowling gave the home rink a comfortable win. Both A. W. Grimmett and J. W. Deakin, who recorded the highest rink win last Saturday, went down. C. Marques had a 5 and a 6 on successive ends to beat Grimmett by 19-17. Led 12-7 at the 12th end F. V. Ribeiro's four beat Deakin's rink by 19-17.

Nish's Four Win Game. Good bowling by H. Nish's four, who beat F. Cullen's rink by 27-16, gave the Bowling Green their 10 shots win over Kowloon Docks. Adam Halland, the leading premier league skip, forced a draw with J. C. Brown after being 21-15 down at the 17th end, and L. Guy lost to R. Lapsley by one shot after being 14-8 down at the 14th end. The 20th head was a dead one.

Moss and Mair in Form. G. C. Moss' rink, by beating Neil Drummond's four by 19 shots, were mainly responsible for the Police win over Taikoo Docks by 18 shots on their own green. It was the second home win for the Police in five years. A six on the third head gave Moss an overwhelming win by 32-13. W. Mair also recorded a big win, beating J. C. Chalmers by 15 shots. The Police skip had a 7 on the 12th end where he led 23-3. Wally Wotherspoon recorded the only Taikoo win when he beat W. E. Hollands by 29-13 after leading 21-7 at the 14th end.

Drake's Four Decide Game. W. S. Drake's four beat S. Eccleshall's rink 31-14 to give the Bowling Green a win by 16 shots over the highly-placed Civil Service. Drake had a 5, a 6, and two 4's, and was leading 31-5 at the 16th end. F. Rapley just beat H. Westlake by one shot, a two on the last end giving him the verdict in a very close encounter, and H. G. Sherriff went down to R. R. Wood by 19-17 after an even game.

Big Win For Muskett's Four. W. B. Muskett's win by 11 shots sealed the fate of the Police at Ming Yuen, the Electric winning by 16 shots. W. Glendinning's rink failed to score on the first eleven heads when they were led 12-0. Norman Currie beat Bob Marks by 22-17 after being led 15-14 at the 15th end, and L. de Rome was forced to a draw by A. E. Carey after leading 20-17 at the 20th end.

Field Records Tenth Win. W. V. Field registered his tenth successive win as a skip when his rink beat W. W. Hirst's four by 17 shots to lay the foundations for the Craigengower win over the K.C.C. by 11 shots. Falling to score on the first six ends when he was led 12-0 Hirst's quartette were never in a challenging position. The K.C.C. won on the other two rinks when L. Jack beat H. V. Pearce by 25-18 after leading 18-6 at the 11th end and E. Kern beat A. Razaek by 16-15 after being 13-7 down at the 15th head. Pearce's four recorded a 6 at the 14th head.

Unfinished Match. In the abandoned match between the K.C.C. and the champions U. M. Omar's four led Joe Fraser's rink by 8-4 at the seventh end; B. W. Bradbury led A. Hyde Lay 7-5 at the sixth end; and A. Silkatone led R. Bana 7-3 at the seventh end. When the match is resumed on Wednesday Craigengower will commence 2 shots up.

DAVIS CUP SINGLES

To-morrow Austin, who was affected by the sweltering heat, yesterday, will meet Cochet, and Perry will play Merlin, or Borotra, should the match be dependent on the result. If Austin is unable to take his place in the British side to-morrow Harold Lee, who replaced Perry against Crawford in the match against Australia, will fill the vacancy. Perry is expected to win his match to give Britain the trophy.

How Perry Won.

EXCITING CONTEST UNTIL THE FIFTH SET

Perry twice double-faulted in the second and fourth games and Cochet as a consequence led 3-1. Perry, however, came to the net on the right ball and levelled at 4-all, but was down 5-4 and 6-5 before he again levelled at 6-all.

The games then went with the service to the eighteenth where Perry was leading 20-love only to have a disastrous period in which he committed a series of errors to lose the game and set at 10-8.

Perry would have won the set if he had shown more concentration, for he sent over gems of returns.

Perry led 2-0 in the second set, but Cochet levelled and went to 4-2 on Perry's errors. Then, however, Perry's rapier like volleying pierced Cochet's armour at all points and the Briton won the set at 6-4.

Cochet led 5-3 in the third set and was set point on one occasion. Perry stormed the net where he proved so successful that he won the set at 8-6.

Cochet took the fourth set mainly as the result of a series of astonishing passing shots, achieving impossible-looking angle shots. Perry once led 3-1, but dropped five games in a row for the set at 6-3.

Cochet simply crumpled up in the final set in which there was nothing worth the name of a rally.

Austin Tires, Then Recovers.

The weather was swelteringly hot when play opened before 13,000 spectators at the Stade Roland Garros. The Davis Cup was enthroned opposite the Presidential box in which was M. Albert Lebrun, the French President, and party.

Austin's experience and court-craft were clearly demonstrated when with deep driving and shrewd placements he forced Merlin frequently to net his returns. The Briton went ahead at 4-1 and 5-3 and then took the set at 6-3.

Austin quickly went to 4-0 in the second set, but Merlin strengthened when Austin was seen to be tiring. He then played into his opponent's hands by sending over comfortable lobs which Merlin tucked away to pull up to 4-all. Austin, however, threw all his reserves into the game and won at 6-4 after exciting play during Merlin's service.

Austin carried all before him after this, winning six consecutive games in the easiest manner, apart from the fourth game in the third set, which went to deuce on seven occasions including a long rally of 35 to 40 strokes which ended in Merlin netting to give the Englishman game.

Austin looked ill and most distressed at the finish.

Britain's 12th Challenge.

By eliminating America in the inter-zone final, Britain gained the privilege of participating in the Challenge Round for the twelfth time since the Cup, most coveted of tennis prizes, was offered for competition in 1900 by Dwight F. Davis, who was formerly United States secretary of war and Governor General of the Philippines.

Of the last 11 participations in the Challenge Round, Britain have won the trophy five times, four of which were in succession—1903, 1904, 1905 and 1906. The last time Britain held the Cup was in 1912, when they beat Australasia by 3 to 2.

Possession of the trophy has been in the hands of France since 1927. France's ownership of the Cup for the last six years was made up by five wins over the United States and one over Britain.

Since the competition was instituted in 1900 the United States has held it ten years, France six, Australasia six, and Great Britain five years.

THE HEALTHY STATE OF RACING.

Fifty Per Cent. Increase Noted in Yearling Entries.

Entries for races to be run in 1934 and 1935 in England, for foals and yearlings received greatly increased support from breeders and owners, compared with 1932. The total number is nearly 50 per cent. more than last year, and 40 per cent. more than in 1931.

Indians Beat Tigers in U.S. Baseball.

New York, Yesterday.

A Braves ten innings Boston Phillies were still on level terms at 12-all yesterday in one of the closest major league baseball games witnessed this season. The game was then abandoned as a tie owing to bad light.

In the American League Cleveland Indians beat Detroit Tigers by 7 to 2 in the only game on the card. The game between the Yankees and Senators was abandoned owing to rain.

THE GROWTH OF DICTATORSHIP

WILL HITLERISM, SHOULD IT CONSOLIDATE?

OPPOSITION ABROAD MAY DEVELOP

(By J. B. Firth.)

THERE would seem to be vintage years in the history of Revolution. Such a year was 1848. Another was 1914, the fruitful parent of War and Revolution in every shape. To these, apparently, must be added 1933, which is Hitler's Year.

Germany is accepting a thoroughgoing Revolution with a docility beyond surprise. Blood has, indeed, been shed, but only in cups, when it might have been in rivers. The will to resist is atrophied.

Every few days a new stroke is delivered by the Nazis at some institution, party, or organisation which had seemed securely founded and well supplied with all the means of defence. Yet the citadels have yielded at a touch.

Only Hitler Now

The Germany of Stresemann and of Brüning, and even yesterday's Germany of Hitler and of Hugenberg, has vanished as completely as that of von Bülow and of Bismarck. It is only Hitler now. Not only in Prussia, but in every State of the Reich, the will of the Nazis is supreme. Even in Bavaria, the great stronghold of the Catholic Centre party, no writ runs but his. Only the daily weakening check of the aged President remains, and he is 86.

Yet the experts were all sure that Hitler was no more than a mere spell-binding demagogue whose bubble would burst as soon as it came into contact with realities. He danced, they said, to the tune and at the bidding of others. They are now describing him, prematurely perhaps, because as yet he has achieved nothing constructive—the Teutonic Mussolini.

The first time Signor Mussolini came to London, soon after his dramatic rise to power, to take part in one of the many post-war conferences, a very shrewd British statesman—now dead—who sat near him in conclave, remarked, "There's nothing in him." So much for first impressions.

Versailles Blunders

Many of the wisest heads were similarly persuaded that Leninism was altogether too ferocious, inhuman, and mechanical to last. But it still endures, though under the direction of a no less strong but far coarser brain. The Turkish Dictatorship of Mustafa Kemal is still absolute. No tongue dare speak but his in Turkey, and no outsider dare interfere.

Hitlerism is not making the mistake of being half-hearted. It is the incarnation of violence—the furor Teutonicus—in politics. That it brooks no opposition at home is the affair of the German people. The question for Europe is whether, if the new German system becomes consolidated, as Fascism has become consolidated, it will brook opposition abroad.

Here, then, is another great country which has contemptuously turned its back upon Democracy and Parliamentary institutions. That is the interest of the German Revolution for Englishmen and Westerners. The Weimar Republic is dead beyond resurrection. The blow to Democracy in Great Britain, France, and the United States is severe.

The reactions may be profound. Historians will attribute, I think, the flamboyant growth of Hitlerism to the Treaty of Versailles, which provided the renascent German nationalist spirit with every real and imagined grievance it could desire.

Flaming appeals to the patriotism of the youth of Germany to organise themselves for the overthrow of those who had consented to her humiliation met with a ready and passionate response. The propagandists had no scruples about violating the truth, whether in relation to the war or the Armistice. They have imbued the youth of Germany with a ferocious hatred of the Jews and all connected with the Weimar Republic, with a bitter scorn for internationalism and pacifism, and with a belief in Force, and Force alone.

The assistance by the Allies upon the establishment of a democratic form of Government in Germany was a terrible blunder, if they were not also prepared to make peace on terms which a democratic Government could fulfil without ruin to their country. As it is, the younger generation associate Social Democracy with national humiliation and an unparalleled economic distress. To rid Germany of its hateful presence has been one of the dominant motives of the Hitlerite revolution.

Pure-Bred Germans.

But to what preposterous lengths the teaching has been carried! And what raving nonsense is masquerading as truth. Consider the absurdity of proclaiming within the hearing of German savants that the pure-bred German should be allowed to enjoy full German rights on German soil, that no Jew or Social Democrat can be a patriot, that all foreign or exotic influences are poisonous, and that no non-German ideas must propagate in German minds. Bedlam acknowledges a master.

Force one can understand—with out it revolutions rarely succeed. But the suppression of all political parties except the one, and all political thought except that of the Government in a country so highly intellectual and cultured, would be incredible had it not been achieved.

I have no blind adoration for Democratic and representative Government. Liberalism has itself to thank for much of the discredit into which it has fallen. It has pandered to the mob, flattered the quarter-educated, and depressed the best elements in the governing classes simply in order to snatch temporary party advantages.

BRIDGE NOTES

THE PSYCHIC BID

A "Brilliant" Move Analysed.

By CAPT. LINDSAY MUNDY

Things are not always what they seem. This reflection is aroused in my mind by an analysis which I lately read of the hand set out below, which was played in a recent match.

North:—
S-K 10 8 7 4
H-A 9 8
D-K 3
C-A K Q

West:—
S-2
H-J 10 6 2
D-A Q 8 5 2
C-9 6 4

South:—
S-A J 9 5
H-7 5 4 3
D-4
C-10 5 3 2

East:—
S-Q 6 3
H-K Q
D-J 10 9 7 6
C-J 8 7

East and West were vulnerable. East being the dealer. In room I, North and South arrived at the correct final declaration of Four Spades. East, South, and West all started by passing. North made the Approach bid of One Spade, received the scarcely justified raise to Three, and bid Four himself. Had he been playing the Direct system North would have started with Two Spades, and been put straight to Four, since a jump raise over a Two bid does not require as much strength as over a One bid.

"BRILLIANT THIRD HAND"

So far there is not much to complain about. But now turn to room II. After passes from East and South, West made what is described as the "brilliant third hand opening psychic bid of One No Trump."

To the brilliance of this bid is credited the fact that North-South played the hand in Three No Trumps instead of in Four Spades, and failed to make game.

This is how the bidding went.

East	South	West	North
No	No	1 N.T.	2 D.
2 D.	No	3 D.	3 N.T.

No excuse can be found for North and South for arriving at this final declaration of 3 N.T. instead of Four Spades. After West's bid of 1 N.T. North has two courses open to him. He can either make an informative double, or bid Three Spades. He is, of course, much too strong to bid only Two Spades.

I do not suggest that the informative double was a crime, nevertheless I do not approve of it. It is necessary to remember that a non-pre-emptive reply to an informative double does not show any strength, and may be on four to the nine, so that these doubles should be reserved for those cases where the doubler requires information about the distribution of his partner's hand, which is only the case when he is unable to select from among his own suits. Consequently, in this case he should bid Three Spades, which would, of course, be raised to Four, and the psychic bid would have been ineffective.

AN INEXCUSABLE PASS

However, he elected to double and East bid Two Diamonds. South's subsequent pass is quite inexcusable. East's intervention removes his obligation to take North out of his double, but the raison d'être of the double still remains. North has said, "I have a strong, or at least a strongish, hand; please help me to select a suit." South has a marked preference for Spades, and his hand is by no means valueless. He should, of course, bid Two Spades, when all would be well, and the psychic bid would have been in vain.

We will pass on from these two mistakes, and return to North, West in the meantime having raised the bidding to Three Diamonds. Surely, North's obvious bid now in Three Spades, instead of which he embarks on Three No Trumps, which both opponents have bid, with no established suit of his own, and with his partner having done nothing but pass.

It is quite clear, therefore, that the success of this "brilliant" psychic bid was dependent on the opponents making one poor and two very useful lessons.

atrociously bad bids.

Risks Run.

We will now turn to the other side of the picture and examine what risks were run. Seeing that North-South were not vulnerable, West was attempting to save 120 points below the line and 300 above, a total of 420 points.

Had he been doubled in his Three Diamond bid, he would have been two down, a loss of 600 points. I do not attach very great importance to that, because he was not very likely to be doubled in that contract, and he had been, the additional loss would have been only 180 points.

When making this psychic bid, however, he knew nothing about the other three hands, except that East and South had refused to open.

It does not require any great stretch of imagination to suppose that North may have King, Knave, ten, and another Diamond over him, and that East may have just sufficient strength to raise him to Two No Trumps. West's hand would be worth exactly one trick, and the result could very easily be a penalty of 1,400, and conceivably might be more.

No, I fear I cannot agree that these psychic bids are brilliant, I have gone very fully into the hand, because the bidding afforded some opponents making one poor and two very useful lessons.

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, JULY 30, 1933.

Hong Kong's Empire Fair.

SEASONAL lethargy cannot be attributed as the only reason for the disappointing response to the circular addressed to one hundred exhibitors at the Empire Fair, and that a mere twenty-nine of the exhibitors thought it worth their while to reply reveals an indifference which prejudices the prospects for the next Fair — assuming that the event is to be continued. In Hong Kong no undue enthusiasm is expected for any project of this nature, but in a matter which is of intimate concern to most of the local business firms a much wider manifestation of interest was anticipated. After all, no matter what deficiencies and shortcomings may have attended the two Fairs that have been held, the event does at least provide an opportunity for advertising of British goods and for development of sales, directly or indirectly. If that opportunity has not been fully availed of some of the exhibitors may not be entirely free from blame. The attitude adopted by the great majority of exhibitors to the questionnaire would indicate that the appeal made at the Fair for representatives of British firms to display greater initiative, and to employ more progressive methods of marketing and of salesmanship, fell on many deaf ears. From the meagre total of replies that have been received, not a great deal can be gained owing to the marked divergence of opinion, but it is gratifying to note that suggestions were mainly of a constructive nature. Most firms favour a charge for admissions and for space, and, in view of the experience at this year's Fair, both proposals will probably be adopted. Only six are in favour of holding the Fair on Empire Day, the Fair would lose some significance by a change of date, the advantages of holding the Fair in the winter would be offset by the competition that would be encountered from rival attractions, particularly through sporting and social activities, while the voluntary organisers would be more inconvenienced by calls on their time and energies during the busy period of the year. The sharpest division of opinion is on the nature of the Exhibition, twelve voting for an Empire Fair, and nine for General Fair. Many ambitious schemes have been advanced for a World Fair, with a Carnival as an added attraction. The issue is being confused, particularly by the Carnival suggestion, and while a South China Trade Exhibition, held in Hong Kong, is a commendable ideal, the interests of a British Colony are best served by an Empire Fair. Certainly, the Fair should be continued, irrespective of any other Exhibition that might be organised.

'Back To Economic Nationalism.

"STRANDED on a rock of gold" immediately after the opening, the World Economic Conference was doomed from the moment President Roosevelt refused the request of the gold bloc nations for currency stabilisation. Although many delegates favoured an immediate postponement, the Conference dragged on for several weeks while mediators, led by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, who was playing his accustomed role, attempted to effect a compromise. The United States delegation made a belated effort to prolong the sessions, but the European representatives became wary of any American statements after Mr. Cordell Hull and his associates had been repudiated by Mr. Roosevelt. Over six weeks after the opening, the Conference finally adjourned on Thursday. It may resume within a few months, but in the meantime, nationalism has once again prevailed. Although a certain amount of useful groundwork was accomplished, no practical measures were agreed upon, and as Dr. Colijn declared, the Conference has no reason to congratulate itself on the results achieved. They were undoubtedly highly disappointing and dangerous, because the reaction to hopes fostered and dashed might easily aggravate the situation. While each country will continue its own methods of dealing with its own economic crisis, main attention during the recess will be centred on the United States where a bold experiment, based mainly on an inflation policy, has been started by the Roosevelt administration.

NEW CENTRE FOR EMPIRE TELEPHONE

Largest Building Of Its Kind In World.

SUPER - OPERATORS EMPLOYED

London. Some 200 girls will operate the Empire and Overseas switchboard in the new eleven-storeyed Faraday Building, the largest telephone building in the world and the new telephone headquarters of Great Britain and the Empire.

These girls are super-operators, for they have to speak fluently in the languages of the countries with whom they talk each day.

The new Post Office International exchange has been built after a visit by Post Office engineers to telephone administration: throughout the world, in order to obtain the latest ideas in technique.

It embodies everything that will make service speedy and accurate. It is the most modern of its kind in existence, and had been completed with the object of maintaining this country in a supreme position with regard to overseas telephone communication.

Faraday Building also provides accommodation for the City, Central and Toll Exchanges, when they are automatic.

In 1923, 160,000 overseas calls were originated in London; last year the number was about 600,000 — one very good reason for finding the International switchboard a bigger home. — Reuter.

LORD CECIL'S PORTRAIT FOR THE LEAGUE

Gift From Sir John Simon.

TRIBUTE TO FAMOUS PACIFIST

Genova. Lord Cecil's well known features beamed upon the League Council chamber from a life-size portrait by Philip Lazlo which was presented to the League of Nations by Sir John Simon at the beginning of the day's proceedings recently.

Sir John said that the original had already been presented to the eminent person it so well represented.

Continuing, the British Foreign Secretary said:

"We in Britain have reason to be grateful to Lord Cecil for his many services in the domestic field, but Lord Cecil in the best sense of the term is an international and, memorable though his contribution in other important fields at home have been, we are especially grateful to the man who has contributed so much to the growth and development of the League of Nations and the organisation of peace."

"We all rejoice that this valuable work is still going on and hope that for all time his distinguished and valuable services for the League of Nations and the world will be continued." — Reuter.

Correspondence.

MISS GRANADOS.

[To the Editor "Sunday Herald"]

Sir, — At the Peninsula Hotel on Friday night there were probably only a scant 100 people mostly comprising French, Portuguese and Chinese.

In Tokyo she packed the Imperial Theatre night after night at 6 Yen a seat, and yet Hong Kong gives her very little attention.

Two or three years ago when I was in Madrid staying at an hotel—800 rooms, 800 baths with French cuisine—I tried to find something entirely Spanish in the town. Finally on calling on an old friend in the Bank and asking him where I could get some real Spanish food and see some real Spanish dancing he replied "You will have to go back to New York."

There has probably never been an artist in Hong Kong of equal rank since Helletz. Certainly she is just as interesting as Argentina. The Bull fight and the Peasant dance are at least worth the price of the admission.

OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

Sir Herbert is Watching

There are signs that the third act in the quaint comedy of the Samuelites will not be long delayed.

We have seen the first act, in which they strutted the stage side by side with the other components of the National Government; the second, in which they went out of the Government but not into opposition; and since then the interval has lasted so long that the audience is becoming restive.

The National Liberal Federation Conference, held last month, ordered the Samuelites to cross the floor. They refused to be prompted by the rank and file, and continued to search for a pretext so that they might appear to make the breakaway of their own free will.

There is a growing belief at Westminster that the World Conference will provide the pretext. Sir Herbert is watching the Geological Museum.

If the Conference fails to agree upon an international reduction of tariffs his opportunity will have arrived.

A Royal Standard Mistake

It was noticed with surprise recently that an hotel in the West End was flying the Royal Standard, presumably in honour of King Faisal's visit. Later it was stated that a passer-by had pointed out the error to the management, and that the flag had been hauled down.

Actually no one has the right to fly this flag on a building unless the King is actually inside it.

It is indeed difficult to know what is the correct flag for an ordinary patriotic Englishman to fly on his house. The Union Jack according to strict etiquette, should be flown on land only by Lords Lieutenant, on the Houses of Parliament, and on castles or ruins of castles formerly used for defensive purposes.

If you fly the Union Jack on a boat, however small, you are liable to a penalty of £500 unless you have first obtained a special warrant from the Board of Admiralty.

A Strange Industry

Even many fishermen have been puzzled by the wording of a Treasury Order adding untrimmed natural silk worm gut to the Imports Free List.

It is stated that this article is "the raw material for making gut for fishing tackle and for surgical suture." This would suggest that actually the interior of the silk worm is used, and not, as is generally supposed, some product of the insect, whose interior economy would seem to be about the last thing to provide the required consistency and strength.

But it is so. The gut comes from Murcia, in South-eastern Spain, where millions of silkworms are killed at a time. The intestine, which would otherwise form the silk-spinning apparatus, is extracted, dried and packed in bundles.

"Googly" and the Conference.

The Duke of Gloucester, Lord Borodale, and Mr. J. H. Enthoven, the Middlesex captain, were among many enthusiasts who tried their skill in controlling the "Googly" at the cricket ball in aid of the National Playing Fields Association.

The little elusive rubber ball has made other eminent conquests. At a well-known store not very far from the Geological Museum, the salesman states that during the past fortnight "Googly" sales had doubled, owing he declared, to extensive purchases by World Conference delegates and their staffs.

A Newspaper Bannockburn.

The newspaper war which is being waged all over the country has its fiercest battle-ground in Scotland. There it has been fought with all the fury of Flodden, the bloodiness of Bannockburn.

It has had a decisive result. The Scottish "Daily Express" was founded in November 1928. From the beginning its policy has been one of well-planned regional appeal. It has triumphed in Edinburgh, Inverness, Perth, and Dundee. It has penetrated the granite fastnesses of Aberdeen. It is supreme from Inchnadamph to Lagannallach.

Its circulation figures for May show a net sale of over 235,000 copies a day. No other morning newspaper has ever achieved such a circulation in Scotland.

"Tim" Birkin.

The death of Sir Henry Birkin, at 36, shortly after one of his biggest motoring triumphs, is indeed sad. It is stated that from the beginning, though the bulletins varied, his case was hopeless.

A persistent but utterly nonsensical rumour always surrounded "Tim" Birkin that he was a very rich man. Constantly he was referred to as "the millionaire motorist." He was not within any distance of being a millionaire.

Tim Birkin inherited little from his father beyond a fine place in Norfolk with an excellent shoot. The best young shot in England is generally considered to be Ivan Cobbold. Next would have come Tim Birkin and his young Norfolk neighbour, Beris Wood.

Politicians in Disguise.

Politicians are often accused of lacking practical knowledge of the problems they try to solve. Not so Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, M.P., who has just gone to Edinburgh for the General Assembly. He has had many queer adventures in his search for knowledge.

His latest is going about London in disguise! He puts on his oldest clothes in order to see for himself the conditions of life among workers in certain industries.

It would be fascinating to see Mr. Lloyd George going round the Welsh coalfields with a coal-dusted face and a safety lamp, or Mr. Baldwin in corduroys and clay pipe. It would be impossible, however, they are too well known, though Mr. J. H. Thomas could get by as a bridge-player. Nobody at the card table would suspect him of being only a politician.

The Royal Group.

Behind the new photograph of all four Princes together lies an interesting story.

It was the Prince of Wales's own idea. He wanted a picture of himself and his brothers taken together in full-dress uniform. But without all four being in London, and the tedious necessity of dressing up specially, it was difficult to arrange.

The first Court provided the opportunity; all the Princes were in attendance. The afternoon before the presentations the Prince of Wales rang up Mr. Bertram Park and arranged a sitting for that night.

When the Court was over they all drove to the studio in Dover-street. The picture of them together—the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester, Prince George—was taken first. Such a group of them has never been done before, and in all probability never will be again. Posterity and ourselves should be grateful, particularly as the Prince hates posing.

After this historic group followed individual pictures of each. It was nearly one in the morning when they left.

Tourists.

Parts of Wilton House, Lord Pembroke's wonderful old place, which are not usually seen by visitors will be open to those who resort thither for the Loan Exhibition of Historic Treasures which is being held there.

The state rooms, with their magnificent old masters, are frequently on-view, and it was a favourite amusement of Lord Herbert and his brothers when they were children to dress up as tourists and ask to be shown round.

Armed with Baedekers and other traditional impedimenta of the sightseer, they made the tour of the house under the guidance of the housekeeper.

Battered by storms after fighting heavy head winds for a number of hours this pigeon, which had been released some 250 miles west of Land's End in fog from the steam trawler "Ocean Lux", fluttered to rest on the tennis deck of the "Empress of Britain." It carried a message showing time and place of release, and date of its last feeding.

A most interesting ceremony was performed recently at Mascot Aerodrome, Sydney, New South Wales, when Lady Kingsford-Smith, in the presence of a large gathering christened the first all-Australian-made chassis-less motor car produced in Sydney by Marks Motor Construction Ltd., of which Company the world famous air-man, Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, is a Director. The construction of the car is based on aeroplane design, the usual heavy steel chassis being dispensed with and the body, made of laminated wood, actually serves as the chassis, and the engine, gear-box, differential, springs, etc., are attached to it. It is estimated that the five-passenger tourer, which, due to the unique method of construction, weighs less than one ton, will have a maximum speed of 70 m.p.h. and a petrol consumption of 30 to 35 m.p.g. and will sell at approximately £240. In all trials Socony Gasoline and Mobiloil have been used successfully.

SCIENCES' ANTI-CANCER CAMPAIGN

Medicas Meet At Eastbourn.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS

London. Two important developments in the War which medical science is waging against cancer have been announced recently.

In the first place it was stated at the annual meeting at Eastbourn, of the Institute of Public Health that "absolutely hopeless" cases of cancer had been successfully treated.

Dr. Cronin Lowe said that satisfactory and reliable diagnostic results were being given by his blood serum test for cancer.

It was also announced by Dr. Antony Marginal—that they had been working for 10 years to provide some form of preventive treatment.

They had treated nearly a thousand cases. In some of these cases they had been successful right through, and in no case had there been any ill effect. He had treated all classes with the endocrine inoculation, and in many of the cases treated there had been no recurrence from seven to ten years.

Thirty cases considered "Absolutely hopeless" had been successfully treated, and he had received letters stating that there had been no recurrence for periods of up to 10 years.

R. I. P. H. Campaign. Simultaneously, it is announced that the Royal Institute of Public Health are to launch an effort to prevent cancer.

This statement was made in an interview by a prominent member of the Council of the Institute in an interview at Eastbourn.

"It used to be, and has been for many years, that the disease which caused most deaths was tuberculosis," he said.

"For many years there has been a Society for the prevention of tuberculosis, and as a result of their work, the formation of clinics, and the education of the public, the death rate has gone down considerably."

Also there has been a method discovered for diagnosing merely by a blood examination. Typhoid, for instance, can be detected in this way. When you have found that a patient is affected or likely to be affected by this disease, methods are known by which the attack can be prevented by treatment.

Where Blood Tests Score. "It is suggested that this method of blood examination is, therefore, likely to be of great value in the following ways:

"1. As giving the earliest possible intimation of the patient's likelihood at some future date to become a victim of the disease. This knowledge, if acted upon a reasonable person enables them to commence the appropriate treatment to obtain the proper correction of their blood to bring it back to normal. "I is thought quite likely that at an early date a society will be formed with clinics in London and eventually in other parts of the country, to enable everyone to avail themselves of this very valuable preventive measure."

"2. In the case of patients whose disease is obscure and in the case where the cause of illness is obscure and in which case the medical attendant is desirous of obtaining further help towards proper diagnosis, this test has also been found to be of great value. Several prominent gynaecologists and surgeons have decided to avail themselves of the facility."

"3. In connection with cases definitely known to be cancerous where they may have been operated upon or it might have been decided that they are inoperable cases, this test will give valuable information as to the progress (A) going down; (B) remaining stationary; (C) definitely improving."—Reuter.

SIX WHITE MICE WANTED

For Exterminating Basutoland Pest. DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN

Johannesburg. If only they can be recruited in time, a detachment of six white mice will leave for Basutoland shortly to take part in a grim warfare.

The battle is against myriads of brown field mice that are playing havoc in the trading stores of that territory.

The "recruits" are being sought in Johannesburg by a well-known local business man, whose brother-in-law, a trader in Basutoland, has invoked his help.

Between white mice and brown mice, apparently, it is war to the knife, and the theory is that the white mice, when they get among the brown mice, will drive out the invaders from the trader's grain bins and send them scuttling back to their holes in the veld. It is in that hope, at any rate, that the Johannesburg man is now looking for six white mice, males only.

His quest, however, is not proving so easy. He went to all the places where one would expect white mice to be sold, but it was all to no purpose, and recently, in desperation, he advertised his needs through the Press.

He is anxious to secure the mice as soon as possible, for the position in Basutoland appears to be desperate. Driven from the drought-stricken veld through lack of food, the brown marauders are having a great time in the grain bins of exasperated traders.

All measures to get rid of them have failed, and the recruiting of a squadron of white mice is a last resort.—Reuter.

MYSTIC REVIVES DEAD MAN

Queer Story From South India. SNAKE VICTIM SAVED

Bombay. A remarkable story of how a dead man was brought back to life by means of "Mantric" powers of a Sanyasi (sage) has just been received from Nagakoll in South India. It is stated that a man was bitten by a black cobra notorious for its deadly poison and despite the best medical attendance the man succumbed. According to Hindu custom the dead body was taken to the burning ghāt for disposal and was actually placed on the funeral pyre.

A few minutes more and the body would have been set on fire. But a Sanyasi suddenly appeared on the scene and requested the gathering to hand over the body to him so that he might bring him back to life. The relatives reluctantly handed over the body to the stranger.

The stranger returned a dip in the river nearby returned to the place where the funeral pyre had been erected. Sitting by the side of the dead body he chanted his "Mantras" for five minutes and sprinkled Mantric Water on the dead man's face. While the Sanyasi was performing his wonderful deed, a hawk (which according to Hindu mythology is the vehicle of the Lord Krishna and the worst enemy of snakes) was seen encircling above. As the shadow of the encircling bird fell on the face of the dead man he gradually began to show signs of life. In a short while he sat up as if he had had a deep slumber.

Before the gathering could recover from the surprise the Sanyasi had vanished and he is still at large but the man believed dead is still alive.—Reuter.

MUSSOLINI GIVES STATUE.

Italian Dictator's Tribute To Caesar.

Rome. A statue of Julius Caesar has been presented by Signor Mussolini to the town of Rimini, near the spot where Caesar is believed to have made his decision to cross the Rubicon, which thereby led to the creation of the Roman Empire.

In a letter announcing his decision to the Mayor of Rimini the Duce says:

"You will erect this statue on the column from which Julius Caesar spoke to the soldiers of the 13th legion after he had cast the die, crossed the Rubicon, and decided to march on Rome."

"Every year on the Ides of March you will see that the statue of the founder of the Roman Empire is adorned with flowers."

Rimini is near the birthplace of Signor Mussolini, who was destined to make a second march on Rome, 19 centuries after Caesar.—Reuter.

OPIUM IN SHIP'S BATHROOM.

Cleaner Charged With Possession.

Wong Chat, a bathroom cleaner on the "Kong So," who was charged on the Central Police Court yesterday with possession of 140 taels of raw opium and 18 taels of non-Government prepared opium, was discharged.

The Magistrate, Mr. Wynne-Jones, remarked that in view of the heavy onus placed on the defence by the Opium Ordinance, it was his duty, he thought, to give the accused the benefit of any legal presumption that might be found in his favour. In this case the contraband had been found in a public bathroom of which the accused was merely the keeper. It might easily have been put there by someone else.

AUSTRALIA'S CHANGE OF CURRENCY

First Of New Notes This Month.

PRINCE OF WALES HEAD FOR WATERMARK.

Melbourne.

The work of designing and printing new currency notes, which has been proceeding for two or three years, has reached the stage when stocks are being accumulated and preparations are being made for the issue of the notes to the public.

The first of the new notes to reach public circulation will be the 10/- one, and it is likely that it will be issued about the end of this month. This will be followed in August by the new £1 note. These notes and those of other denominations to follow will be introduced gradually, as existing stocks are exhausted at the Commonwealth Bank.

The new notes will be different from the existing issue. The promise to pay in gold will be deleted, and a statement will be made instead that the note is legal tender for the amount named on its face in the Commonwealth and in the territories of the Commonwealth.

Another change will be the replacement of the Commonwealth coat-of-arms by a watermark showing the head of the Prince of Wales in profile. Unless it is held up to the light, this will appear as a blank space. It will be approximately opposite the representation of the King's head. On the reverse side of the notes will be chiefly allegorical figures in relief, representing the primary industries of Australia.

Several years will elapse before the existing issue is completely replaced by the new one, as it is intended to withdraw the old notes only when they become unfit for further circulation.—Reuter.

He asked for the case to be remanded until Monday so that publicity might be given in the newspapers in the hope of tracing the owner.

The accused was remanded on bail of $50.

The accused is charged with having used a revolver and a dagger and having stolen a sum of $1,000 in money and a quantity of jewellery from Chan Shim Kau.

He was remanded in police custody until Thursday morning.

The Beauty Of God's Gardens

Secluded Havens In A Restless World

GIVES PROTECTION AKIN TO THE CHURCH

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

ONE of the most pleasant features of our modern life is the increasing love which is betrayed towards gardens. How often out here do we long for the glory of an English garden in the heat of the day? With what care and thought do those who have them, tend and improve them.

We have a literature of gardening to-day richer than it has ever been, full of poetry and charm, probably because its appeal to this age of ours, is that of secluded peace. In a restless and distracted world, there is in a garden something so utterly restful. It may be, too, that there is some dim hope that the God who seems so distant in the Creeds, may yet be found somehow walking in the garden in the cool of the day.

In the most beautiful love song ever written, Solomon likened the church to a garden; "A garden enclosed is my sister, my spouse." The great Scottish Divine Morrison deals with this subject in a most delightful way. He applies these words mystically to the bride of Christ, and points out that our finest scholars refuse to see in it merely an impassioned love-lyric.

Order And Variety. First, then, in a garden we have order along with sweet and beautiful variety.

In some English homes, there lies outside the garden wall, a tract of land, called the wilderness. It is a device by contrast, to increase the pleasure which the garden gives. Men see more clearly the design, the order and the arrangement, beside this tangled growth. It is the very genius of a garden that everywhere you have the stamp of order yet everywhere an infinite variety, that is a joy to the eye, all shades of colour, all varieties of shape. There are the flowers that cling and creep, those who bask in the sun, and those who hide themselves away.

We find this same union of order and variety in the church of Christ. It has its offices, its ordered polity, its hours and seasons. Within it is every kind of life and experience. The child is there, the man in the prime of life, and the aged saint. The mother praying for her children, the quiet dreamer of poetic dreams. There is room for the rich, and for the poor. Every shade of experience is there from the crudest fervour to the ripest sanctity. Every colour is there, from every country, bowing in homage at the feet of Christ.

Dependent On God. Then again, in a garden we have human service along with entire dependence upon God.

Every garden is a scene of labour. It reaches its beauty only through human toil. And it is there the perfection of the garden differs from the wildness of nature. In a garden there is human service as truly as in the building of a house, but always there is entire dependence upon God. You can build a palace though no dew should fall, and the summer be rainless. You can build it though the storms and floods come sweeping down. But in a garden service is in vain unless the unseen is working, giving the rain, and the sunshine after rain. It takes night and day to make a garden flourish. It takes the ministry of warmth and dew. Without them the most earnest toil would be useless.

Never since the day of Pentecost has the church been labouring as she is to-day. Wherever there is need or want or misery there is to serve. At home; in every clime of every city, abroad in every country in the world she is among men as one that serveth. Never forget that when men decay the church, "There" is nothing like her service in the world. It is so freely given—it is so lowly—it is so hopeful when everything seems hopeless. But here again, the church is like a garden, all its service is useless without the attendant ministry of heaven. It is the supreme glory of the Church of Christ, that she realizes this fact, and it is the secret of her success.

Freedom Of The Garden. Then again, in a garden we have protection along with liberty.

A garden is always an enclosed place. There is a wall or a hedge. It is protected from the feet of cattle, and from the hands of thieves. It is sheltered from the blighting wind. It is enclosed, not for repression, but that every thing that grows there may have larger liberty to be itself, so that they may be beautiful and bear fruit. Here is restraint, and yet it makes for freedom. Here is a strong defence that everything which grows, may reach its best.

Does not this, too, suggest the church? We are so inclined to forget the protection it offers to us. We recognize the protection of the home. We know what it means for childhood and for youth. Without it, and its discipline, human life would be a poor affair. God who ordained that, has given us also the protection of His church. It guards us in our infancy by baptism and all that baptism implies. It guards us by its opportunities of service. It guards us by its recurring worship, now here more needed than in town and city, where man are so apt to lose in crowded days the vision and the voice of God. Just as we needed the home of our childhood, so we need the church till the last hour we live. And the joy of its guardianship is this, that it checks nothing that is good and beautiful, but fosters everything that has been planted there helping it to the glory of its growth.

Peace Reigns Supreme. Lastly, in a garden we have peace along with growth. Is there anywhere more peaceful than inside a garden? The moment you enter it there is a soothing feeling of repose. The roar of the world seems as a sound of dreams. Yet all the time, there is growth—silent and increasing. There is not a flower that is not trying to bear its fruit. So, in the church you find peace and growth God calls you there to rest, and to forget the noise of a busy world. But there is no rest there, unless we are growing, growing in all the virtues of a Christ-like character, showing it in our lives.

A garden is a lovely spot thing, God wot,

Rose plot, Fringed pool, Ferned grove. The veriest school Of peace, and yet the fool contends that God is not. Not God?—In gardens?—When the cue is cool? Nay, but I have a sign, 'This very sure God walks is mine.'

THE SAFETY FIRST DOG.

Canine Intelligence In Munich.

Munich. A dachshund, which was the habit of going for walks by itself, started to cross the Odonsplatz, one of the city's most crowded squares, at the busiest time of day.

When half way across the dog lost its head and sense of direction, he drifted helplessly to and fro, in imminent danger of getting run over. At last he saw the policeman on point duty, and without hesitation gave himself into his care.

He walked until the policeman was free and then trotted after him to the police station. There he was eventually retrieved by his master.—Reuter.

The Growth Of Dictatorship

Liberty Destroyed.

It is ill-disciplined in the grain; and it is sloppy, sentimental and insincere. But when it comes to the choice between self-government and the dictatorship which is the only practical alternative, those who are accustomed to representative government and believe that its follies and mistakes can be corrected by time, education, patience, and experience will not hesitate in their choice.

The ruthless suppression of the German Communists does not move me. They have been given a dose of their own nauseous medicine. But the suppression of the Social-Democratic party, which, whatever the implications of its doctrine, kept strictly within the cadre of the Constitution and was strictly moderate in its measures, the intolerance shown to even the mildest Liberals' opinions, the preposterous censorship of books and the Press, the abominable persecution of the Jews—there can be no real liberty where these things happen.

The flaming patriotism of a mighty people is always inspiring, but there is too little of the pure white flame in the case of Hitlerism and too much of the rolling clouds of smoke which one associates with a burning oil-well. We still do not know in what constructive shape Hitlerism will seek expression.

That it will be militaristic is not in doubt. That it will be Chauvinistic as and when it feels it has the power to give expression to its Nationalist policy its present relations with Austria abundantly indicate.

A Storm-Centre.

There is a universal feeling that a new political storm centre has arisen in Europe in the old spiritual home of militarism. Fascism, at one time, gave rise to similar apprehensions which passed away as the iron hand of Mussolini brought the Corporate State into full existence. The same thing may happen in Germany.

But whether it succeeds or fails, the reactions in other countries are already visible. There is an increasing impatience of opposition. When one sees others taking short-cuts the temptation to imitate is strong.

The British Socialist party has formally abandoned "Gradualism," and some of its leaders are urging the adoption of a programme by which, if they get a majority at the next election, they will deal with their Conservative and Liberal opponents as Hitler has dealt with his, sweeping aside all existing constitutional checks to the immediate overthrow of Capitalism and the establishment of their own political dictatorship.

Rule Based On Force.

The worst of dictators is that they foul the stream. It is not "the crowned heads" who plot against the people's liberties in these days. It is not the principles of "classification, caste, and legitimacy" which threaten democracy. It is those who invent the plausible fallacy that the efficient State must consist of one party only—the party to which they belong—and say that only by a ruthless dictatorship based on force can the people be saved.

This is to return to the old absolute State. The form may differ, but the absolutism and the tyranny are the same, and the effect on the mentality and the life of the people will be the same also.

I regret that Germany has abandoned the free system of government, and hope it is only temporarily. It is impossible to believe that the most critical people in Europe will long tolerate the suppression of all independent political controversy and almost all individual freedom.

BUSINESS BETTER IN GAOL.

Negro Does Not Want To Leave.

Denver, Colorado. A 30-day jail sentence is helping business for Mr. Lee Vance, a negro barber.

"Don't let the judge put me out of this jail," he has instructed his lawyer. He explained that his special combination hair cuts and shave for which his fellow prisoners pay him 2/- apiece, were netting him more than he formerly made outside.—Reuter.

KILLED DURING RUGBY GAME.

Young Fijian Chief's Sad End.

Suva, Fiji. Ratu (chief) George Cakobavula, a clerk in the Agricultural Department, suffered a fatal injury when playing the part of lock in a rugby scrum. This was his first experience of playing the lock position, and it appears that he bent his head down and the pressure broke his backbone. He was taken to the hospital, but died a week later. Deceased was a Chief of the Island of Nairai, and the son of the Bati of the Island. He was a prominent cricketer, and an enthusiastic tennis player.—Reuter.

WHERE BEETHOVEN DRANK.

Plaque Placed On Famous Tavern.

Vienna. The proprietor of the inn known as the "Wild Man" in the Prater, Vienna's Hampstead Heath, has had a plaque placed outside in memory of a famous former patron, the composer Beethoven.

In a letter written to Ignaz von Gleichenstein in 1807, Beethoven says: "As I have not much to do this morning, I am going about mid-day to the 'Wild Man.' I expect that I shall meet no wild men there, but fair charmers, and I must put on my glad rags."—Reuter.

$6,000 OFFER FOR BIBLE.

City Of Treves Refuse To Sell Below $9,000.

Cologne. The city of Treves has refused an offer of 120,000 marks ($6,000 at par) for the second volume of the Gutenberg Bible, preserved in the municipal library.

Negotiations with a Leipzig dealer broke down at the figure mentioned. The city's reserve price was 180,000 marks ($9,000 at par). If the sale had been concluded the proceeds would have been devoted to the building of a new library at Treves.—Reuter.

VIVID TALES OF HAUNTED HOUSES

Britain's Ghastly Ghosts

Spectral Shapes That Chill The Blood

THE TERROR OF THE TOWER

(BY HAYDEN CHURCH.)

WHAT was the most terrifying ghost on record?

This question is raised by the strange story just revealed by the daughter of a famous British Ambassador of how she and her family were driven out of a country house for which they had paid £3,000 by the terror bred in them by the spectre by which they declared the place is haunted.

It is Miss Muriel Buchanan, whose father, the late Sir George Buchanan, was British Ambassador to Russia during the war, who has told this extraordinary tale of days of horror in a house "walked" by the ghost of a triple murderer clad in the habit of a monk who was one of his victims.

"Nothing has gone well with us," Miss Buchanan declared, "since we bought the house from which fear ultimately drove us."

"The house itself seemed a delightful old place. We paid £3,000 for it. A few months later we were glad to sell it at a heavy loss."

"The first day that we lived there a terrible depression crept over me. Visitors confessed to feelings of terror and refused to stay more than one night under our roof. My servants gave notice."

"Then we saw the ghost in broad daylight. I was mixing cocktails for a house party one September afternoon, when I saw a black figure slink down the corridor which led from the drawing room. It was the figure of a cowed monk."

"Sometimes a triangle of blue light would appear over the medieval fireplace of the drawing room after dark. We often heard tapping on the stairs and in the halls. Often we heard an infant crying although there were no children in the house. Cats and dogs ran out of the rooms with hair bristling with terror."

"Then we heard the legend which is attached to the house. 'Four hundred years ago a foot-pad is said to have murdered a monk and assumed his habit. The false monk arrived at the house which we were to buy four centuries later. He seduced and later murdered the owner's daughter and her baby. That is the terrible story.'

More Ghastly Still.

Fearsome the story is, sure enough! But compared with some of the spectres of which I have heard as haunting other old houses, and "squeaking and gibbering" in ancestral castles and royal palaces in these islands, a mere "black cowed monk"—even if a false one with three murders on its soul—appears like a guardian angel.

According to a psychic investigator who took a census of them some years ago, more than 150 houses and other places in Great Britain are haunted. The amazing horde of supernatural beings that supposedly lurk in them include some of the most horrifying declared to exist anywhere, and which of these "spooks" is the most affrighting of all it is difficult to say.

In this one of the "monstrous and appalling" spectral shapes that are said to have been raised in ancient Hermitage Castle by the "magic" of a wicked nobleman whose indignant neighbours ultimately boiled him in lead?

Is it the blood-chilling phantom, "half mortal, half devil"—sometimes described also as a "human toad," that legend declares glides horrifyingly by night along the corridors and through the silent courts of frowning Glamis Castle?

Or may the most fearsome of all spectres be, perhaps, the "indescribably horrible shape" reported to have been seen again and again in a house in Berkeley Square, London—a shape that drove a girl mad with terror and caused the death of at least two persons?

The last mentioned apparition haunted the Berkeley Square house as comparatively recently as 50 years ago, according to a sailor who, with a companion, had a terrifying experience there.

One night the two sailors, lacking money to pay for lodgings, broke into the house, whose last occupants had fled from it, and lay down to sleep.

In the dead of night there were strange noises mingled with the tramping of feet, and then a shape "indescribably hideous" made them leap up in terror.

Bill, one of the sailors, escaped, but Ted, his companion, was flung out of a window and his dead body was found by the police in the back garden.

Fatal Atmosphere.

That this particular house was said to be haunted and to have been long unoccupied on that account Lord Lytton recorded, and another contemporary writer says:

"The house in Berkeley Square contains at least one room the atmosphere of which is supernaturally fatal to body and mind alike."

A girl saw, heard and felt such horror in it that she went mad and never recovered sanity enough to tell how or why.

"A gentleman, a disbeliever in ghosts, dared to sleep in it, and was found a corpse in the middle of the floor, after frantically ringing for help in vain. Rumours describe other cases of the same kind, all ending in death, madness or both, as the result of sleeping, or trying to sleep, in that room."

The house has since been demolished and rebuilt.

Another pretty awful ghost, according to report, is the headless tappings on the stairs and in the halls. Often we heard an infant crying although there were no children in the house. Cats and dogs ran out of the rooms with hair bristling with terror.

Then we heard the legend which is attached to the house. 'Four hundred years ago a foot-pad is said to have murdered a monk and assumed his habit. The false monk arrived at the house which we were to buy four centuries later. He seduced and later murdered the owner's daughter and her baby. That is the terrible story.'

The last mentioned apparition haunted the Berkeley Square house to the son of the house was not regarded with favour by the latter's mother. On the eve of their wedding, the tale goes, the old woman asked the bride-to-be to let her (the mother), see her in her bridal dress.

When she presented herself in the old woman's room, the latter threw a lighted oil lamp at her and she was burned to death, the murderess thereupon going mad.

In a half-ruined old castle in the north of England, "two figures of hellish horror; featureless, fleshless and foul, clad in the tattered, rotted garments of a monk and nun" have been "seen" several times, and in an ancestral seat in Wales the spectre of a man without eyes or eye-sockets strikes terror into those unlucky enough to behold him.

Haunted Castle.

For nerve-racking horrors, however, no other haunted castle in England can hold a candle to Hermitage, in Northumberland, an authority on ghosts has declared.

It was within its massive and gloomy, and now deserted, walls, that thirteenth century Lord Soules of evil memory lived and dabbled in magic.

Soules's neighbours put up with his misdeeds for some time, but when he murdered the much loved young laird of Kellder their patience was exhausted. They asked permission of the king to destroy him.

"Hang him, burn him, boil him, do what you please with him," the king told them.

Taking the latter of these hints, his neighbours seized Soules and plunged him, encased in armour, into a huge cauldron of boiling lead. The pretty young widow of the laird of Kellder, whom Soules had murdered, stood by exulting.

After that Hermitage Castle, it is said, witnessed nightly scenes of indescribable hellishness. The hideous and unearthly shapes seen there (and, it is declared, still to be seen), were imagined to be evil spirits that Lord Soules, by his magic, had raised.

ACID STOMACH

● If rich foods disagree, it need not mean a "weak stomach." Sourness and gas doesn't mean "indigestion." Just take an anti-acid to sweeten the system, and enjoy life! Before meals, or afterward when distress is felt. Do this awhile, and stomach and bowels will be in fine order. Use only genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia; it is standard. The other preparations do not have the same anti-acid action.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

THE BRITISH OPEN RECORD

Round Of 67 After 8 Foot Putt.

LACEY'S WITHDRAWAL

St. Andrews, July 4.

W. Nolan, the Portmarnock professional, had a record round of 67 on the Old Course at St. Andrews to-day, and this placed him at the head of the field in the qualifying stage of the British Open Golf Championship with an aggregate of 138.

In marked contrast with this was the experience of A. J. Lacey, of Seladon Park, who played in the recent Ryder Cup match. He reached the turn in 39, took four putts at the twelfth, and was in two bunkers at the next. The tale of disaster was continued up to the sixteenth, where he retired. Lacey mentioned yesterday that he was heartily tired of golf, and that he intended to give it a rest.

In the blazing heat and on a course baked as hard as concrete, the scores for the most part were high. The Americans, with one or two exceptions, however, were playing well within themselves, and among the first of them to come in was Leo Diegel with an easy round of 75 for an aggregate of 150.

Yesterday the admission charge of 2s. 6d. had kept down the number of spectators to a few hundreds where in past years there has been as many thousands. This morning there was scarcely more than a handful on the course.

Cyril Tolley was playing with the American, Johnnie Farrell, and hooked his first drive so wildly that it nearly went off the course on the far side of the 18th fairway.

John de Forest, the amateur champion, who said a week ago that nothing on earth would induce him to play in the Open Championship, was given a new swing and a new set of clubs by Leo Diegel last week, and arrived in great haste on Sunday night. He played very well yesterday and

GORILLA JONES WINS SLOW BOUT.

Points Decision Over Ketchell.

Los Angeles, July 18.
In a slow and colourless bout, Gorilla Jones, the middleweight boxing champion, took a ten-round decision here, to-night, from Westley Ketchell, one of the principal contenders.

Jones was credited with seven rounds, the remaining three going to Ketchell, who had a big advantage in the weights, tipping the beam at 162½ lb., whereas the negro weighed but 155 lb. It was a non-title bout.—United Press.

Beat "Bobby" Jones.
R. H. Oppenheimer, requiring a four for 157 on the Old Course, prejudiced his chances by driving six inches out of bounds and losing two strokes.

Nolan's total of 138 set a pace which nobody could hope to equal. He distinguished himself in this year's Southport tournament, where he shared second place with Cotton.

To-day he made his record—the previous best was 68, jointly held by George Duncan and Bobby Jones—simply through faultlessly straight play through the green, allied with a really masterly putting touch. Several times his drives landed in divot marks, but it made no difference to the straightness of his second shots.

Let with two fours for his 67, he took five to the road hole and then, with the greatest confidence, ran down a putt of eight feet for a three at the last.

Another I was glad to see do so well was Bert Gadd, of whom I have several times made favourable mention during recent professional tournaments. I am convinced that he stands as great a chance of achieving real fame as any of our younger professionals. He had a 70 on the Old Course.

He missed a putt of a yard at the ninth, and went out in 34.

Coming home he had 5 at the thirteenth and sixteenth, but made up for both of them by chipping deftly into the hole for a 3 at the seventeenth.

The Most Weird.

That many of the apparitions that have been mentioned were calculated to strike terror to the boldest most people will agree. But when it comes to the distinction of being the weirdest, and perhaps most terrifying one on record, that must be "handed" one imagines, to the horrifying and fantastic spectral. I think that once mentioned a Keeper of the Crown Jewels at the Tower of London and his horror-stricken wife.

Of all the Tower ghosts, and they are many, this one seen by Edmund Lenthal Swift, Keeper of the Crown Jewels from 1814 until 1862, easily takes first place for unaccountability. It cannot be better described than in Swift's own words.

"One Saturday night in October, 1817," he said in his statement regarding the occurrence, "I sat at supper with my wife, her sister and our little boy in the sitting room of the Jewel House which, then comparatively modernised, is said to have been the doleful prison of Anne Boleyn.

"The doors were all closed, and heavy and dark cloth curtains let down over the windows, and the only light in the room was that of two candles on the table. I sat at the foot of the table, my son on my right hand, his mother fronting the chimney piece, and her sister on the opposite side.

"I had offered a glass of wine and water to my wife when on putting it her lips she paused and exclaimed "Good God, what's that?"

"I looked up and saw a cylindrical figure like a glass tube seemingly about the thickness of my arm hovering between the ceiling and the table.

"Its contents appeared to be a dense fluid, white and pale azure, like to the gathering of summer cloud and incessantly mingling within the cylinder.

"This lasted about two minutes when it began slowly to move before my sister-in-law; then, following the oblong shape of the table between my son and myself, passing behind my wife, it paused for a moment over her left shoulder.

"Instantly she crouched down and with both hands covering her left shoulder, she shrieked out, "Oh, Christ, it has seized me!" total exports of British cars during the month were valued at £423,582. This figure, compared with February, 1932, at the time, showed an increase of £226,612, ever, though the car exports, moreover, against the wainscoting, it slowly were 200,000 greater than for moved around the room—and vanished.

Outside this tower, presumably a few seconds afterwards, a sentry saw a shapeless mass issuing from under the Jewel Room door. He lunged at it with his bayonet, which passed straight through it and stuck in the wood.

He was picked up unconscious. (World Copyright Reserved).

WIDOWS' STREET IN LIVERPOOL.

Challenge To World.

London.
A street in Liverpool is issuing a challenge to any other city to produce a street with as many happy widows living in it.

In 50 houses in Sophia Street there are 30 widows, many of them having lived in the same street from 30 to 60 years.

Not a widow has moved from Sophia Street in over 20 years.—Reuter.

MOTURING NOTES.

FOR MOTORISTS ABROAD.

Useful Handbook Published.

The 1933 edition of "Motoring Abroad," published annually by the American Automobile Association, is ready for distribution, it is announced. The handbook contains information about transporting the car, customs regulations and driving in Europe. Copies may be obtained (10 cents postage fee) from the A. A. A. headquarters, Pennsylvania Avenue at Seventeenth Street, Washington, D.C., or from its foreign travel division at 501 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

According to the association, 40 per cent of the 200,000 Americans to whom passports were issued in 1932 had recreational travel as their objective. Overseas travel has been simplified by more liberal customs rules, lower steamship fares and reduced hotel rates. Automobiles are now carried uncrated in "floating garages."

BRITAIN'S ROAD-RAIL WAR.

Motor Coach Operators Face Fare Cuts.

Motor coach operators are taking immediate steps to counter the recently announced fare cuts of the railways. Representatives of 36 provincial associations from all parts of the country will attend a meeting in London convened by the Motor Hire and Coach Services Association, says "Motor Transport."

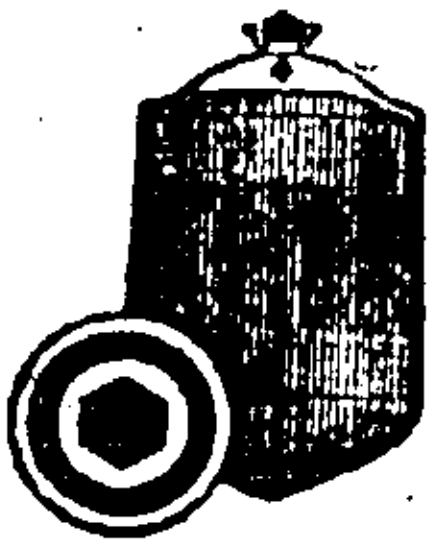

The Yorkshire Motor Coach owners, Ltd., an association of 150 independent coach operators, has called a special meeting to consider the situation. They had just completed a comprehensive scheme for standardising coach excursion fares in Yorkshire in order to eliminate price-cutting. It is now likely that they will ask for a reduction in the fares provided for in the scheme.

IMPROVED EXPORTS

According to the Board of Trade Returns for February, the total exports of British cars during the month were valued at £423,582. This figure, compared with February, 1932, at the time, showed an increase of £226,612, ever, though the car exports, moreover, against the wainscoting, it slowly were 200,000 greater than for moved around the room—and vanished.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

"STYLE," as applied to the Packard, has always meant something more. Associated with it, logically and distinctively, is the other important word, "enduring"—a Packard characteristic for a third of a century. So gradually and correctly has Packard style evolved—like the slow unfolding of a beautiful flower—it has never been at the mercy of that capricious mood which too often alienates to-morrow's style from that of to-day.

THE UNKNOWN SINGER.

Lucien Muratore, famous Tenor of the Paris Opera, and known all over the world as one of the greatest European Singers, portrays the leading role in "The Unknown Singer." His singing is beyond superlatives and is equally competent in the dramatic end of his performance.

He has been heard in Europe and America singing with such great personalities as Nelly Melba, Geraldine Farrar and Mary Garden. He has also created many Operas among which are "Bacchus and Roma" from Massenet, "Penelope" from Gabriel Faure and "Salome" from Strauss. America gave him a fortune to sing at the Metropolitan Opera.

In "The Unknown Singer" he gives a marvellous performance thus proving his ability as an equally great actor.

Hong Kong is fortunate to see and hear an artiste of such international fame, at least on the talking screen. In the title role of this picture he sings some melodies—melodies which will touch the heart of every music lover. The orchestra that accompanies Muratore is one of the world's best known and pleases even the most exacting musician who can never be satisfied with nothing but the finest.

The plot of "The Unknown Singer" is very absorbing and affords the star ample scope to display his art talent, as a singer and actor of a very high standard. It is one of adventure and romance, excitement and intrigue with the haunting melodies running right through the theme as salient parts of the action.

Simone Garden, the beautiful actress, appears in the leading feminine role opposite Muratore. Her performance in this picture will be remembered for a long while. "The Unknown Singer" is a French production by Osso films.

New Submarine Cable
To Be Laid.

INCREASED FACILITIES

London, Yesterday.
A new submarine telephone cable, of the most advanced kind yet produced, will be laid next month across the Straits of Dover and so will increase facilities for conversation between Britain and the Continent.

When the cable has been linked up with the new land lines already installed on both sides of Channel, the "On demand" service already provided for inland trunk calls will, it is hoped, be available for international calls.

The new cable contains nineteen quads or double pairs of lines, but a much greater number of extra conversations may be accommodated, if necessary, by the use of a carrier circuit system.—Reuter.

Escape By Jumping Overboard.

TWO MEN TRICKED AS ARMY RECRUITS

Two men who jumped overboard from a Chinese merchant ship outside Hong Kong harbour on Friday were fired at with rifles and revolvers.

The vessel, which was passing near Green Island in a direction from Canton, approached the Asiatic Petroleum Company's oil-tanker, Sumatra, at this point.

The men were seen to jump overboard and swim towards the Sumatra, and after several shots had been fired, the Chinese vessel, turned away and proceeded out to sea.

A life-boat was lowered from the Sumatra and the two men taken aboard. The men stated that they had been tricked into joining the ship at Canton which, they were told, was bound for Fokien.

After the vessel left Canton they discovered that they had been recruited for the Army. When the ship drew near the Sumatra they saw their chance to escape and jumped overboard.

STERN MEASURES AGAINST REDS

Kiangsi Communists
To Be Blocked.

KWUNMUNLING TO BE STORMED

Canton, Yesterday.

General Chen Chi-lung, Commander-in-Chief of the anti-Communist South Route Expedition, has ordered a blockade of the Red districts in Southern Kiangsi, in order to prevent any entry of foodstuffs to the famished Communists.

This plan is intended to bring about an early capitulation of the Communists in view of the fact that they are short of food supplies.

Public bodies in Southern Kiangsi are asked to co-operate with the military authorities in preventing provisions from going into the Red areas. This step is necessary, because military force alone is not adequate to isolate the Communist counties from the outside world.

Lieutenant-General Chang Mo-hsin, commanding the 4th division of the First Kwangtung Army, is making preparations to call a plenary military meeting to discuss anti-Communist plans.

The Cantonese forces, having captured An Yuan, Chung Shih and Pan Shih, are ready to storm Kwunmunling, where the main Cantonese forces will be a concentrated. From there a combined push will be launched into Juichin, the stronghold of the Communists.—Central Press.

TYPHOON PASSES

As is very often the case, the typhoon was preceded by a spell of exceptional sultry weather, yesterday morning's humidity being particularly noticeable.

MOTOR BOATS IN DIFFICULTY.

Five motor-boats from the Queen's Pier, Connaught Road, were the last of the harbour motor-boat service to leave for the typhoon shelter at 6 p.m. yesterday. They were seen battling their way against heavy seas and strong headwinds in the direction of Causeway Bay. Passing the Royal Naval Dockyard they were held in check for over 10 minutes. One of the boats stalled and the other four had to come alongside and tow the motor boat, making progress with great difficulty.

SIGHTSEERS ON THE WATERFRONT

As usual both Blake Pier and Queen's Pier were used as grandstands by numerous Chinese who crowded the piers to "catch a blow of the wind," and watch the harbour for interesting sights. The harbour, on this occasion, was scarce of big steamers which usually remain tied at their buoys to take the brunt of the typhoon.

SALVAGE TUGS IN ACTION.

The harbour was once again patrolled by the Government tug, Kau Sing, and the two dockyard salvage tugboats, Henry Keswick and Tai Koo No. 1. The Kau Sing was busy during the whole of the morning and afternoon, towing small sampans to the shelters at Yaumati and Causeway Bay.

CANTON EYES ON CHARHAR SITUATION

Southwest Council
Discusses Problem.

MORE GUNBOATS BOUND SOUTH

Canton, Yesterday.

Owing to the tense situation in Charhar and North China, the Southwest Political Council called a special meeting yesterday morning to discuss these urgent problems. Members who attended the meeting were Hsiao Fu-chen, Teng Tse-ju, Chow Lu, Chen Chi-tang, Li Chung-jen, Lin Yun-kai and Tang Shao-yi. The latter arrived here Friday morning from Tang Chia Wan, Chungshan.

In an interview, Mr. Chow Lu, a leading member of the Council, stated that General Chiang Kai-shek, Chairman of the National Military Commission, has not retracted his intention of subjugating the People's Anti-Japanese Allied Forces in Charhar, but on account of the doubtful attitude of several Nanking divisions, the general offensive has been delayed. Mr. Chow said that many of the soldiers sent to attack Charhar are reluctant to participate in another civil war.

Telegrams are received daily from Generals Feng Yu-hsiang and Fang Chen-wu concerning their plans and movements. Mr. Chow said, and it is expected that their forces will march farther afield in re-conquering invaded territories.

Regarding the French occupation of the Coral Islands, Mr. Chow said that the matter has been referred to the Kwangtung Provincial Government, which may or may not take up the matter in conjunction with the Inspector-General of Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Chow confirmed the recent report that the three gunboats Yung Hsiang, Chu Yu and Hai Ou are coming south, but he was not aware of their position at the present moment.—Central Press.

FAMOUS AUTHORS ARE NOW BANNED BY GERMAN DEALERS' ASSOCIATION

Recently large numbers of copies of books of such un-German authors were burned in public squares by German students. In many instances their lists were far more comprehensive than the list now issued by the German Book Dealers' Association. The list which for instance, the students of Berlin University prepared included 65 names of dead or contemporary authors including two foreign authors, namely Henry Barbusse and Upton Sinclair.
